There'll Be a Royal Wedding

By

God and Richie Heinlein
(In God I Trust and Write)

There'll be a Royal Wedding, says the Lord of Hosts, where good will prevail.

There'll be a Royal Wedding, says the Lord of Hosts, that foes cannot assail.

There'll be a Royal Wedding says the Lord of Hosts that grief cannot win.

There'll be a Royal Wedding says the Lord of Hosts where not one can sin.

There'll be a Royal Wedding says the Lord of Hosts that the devil only watches from his spiritually cramped, small, and hot prison of tin.

There'll be a Royal Wedding, says the Lord of Hosts, that the fun never ends.

There'll be a Royal Wedding where not a road bends.

There'll be a Royal Wedding, says the Lord of Hosts, when all the souls of man in the Lamb's Book He mends.

Oh, there'll be a Royal Wedding when Babylon falls.

There'll be a Royal Wedding, says the Lord of Hosts when we are all united in those hallowed halls.

Will you be at the Royal Wedding when the Lord of Hosts calls?

There'll be a Royal Wedding forever and ever Amen, with the devil's fall.

There'll be a Royal Wedding forever and ever, Amen all!

There'll be a Royal Wedding, says the Lord
of Hosts where we will forever have a ball.

Forever and ever, Amen all!
